Coins stolen from Romero

A collection of U.S. coins were taken from his son's bedroom sometime during the past two weeks in an apparent burglary, Phil L. Romero, of 1067 W. Cypress, told Redlands police yesterday.

Sonic boom survey shows noise bothers

Some 150 Redlands area residents hired by Uncle Sam for a one-day job last Dec. 8 may still be wondering about the outcome of the sonic boom project in which they participated at Edwards Air Force Base.

They apparently need wonder no more.

With the SST era presumably only a few years off, the U.S. Office of Science and Technology has come to some conclusions about what may be the most disturbing problem of supersonic flight — the creation of those on the ground to supersonic boom.

An experiment carried on at Edwards in the Mojave Desert broke no eardrums, shattered only those of 218,000 windowpanes and set few animals scurrying for cover, according to an article in the current issue of Newsweek magazine.

But, said the article, the results of the government study —released last week — "do show what many people have been saying for years: the noise is annoying, to say the least."

The Newsweek article gave the following account of the sonic boom project and its findings:

Government observers selected 203 adult, $1,50-an-hour volunteers from both Edwards AFB and Redlands and Yucaipa, two relatively quiet communities. To translate their subjective reactions into statistical terms, the volunteers were asked to rate which of two sounds was more acceptable: the supersonic boom or the scream of a subsonic jet flying overhead at predetermined noise levels. (A 13-point scale ranging from "very acceptable" to "unacceptable" was used.)

The results were hardly encouraging to advocates of transcontinental supersonic flight. Both groups of volunteers were subjected to sonic booms equivalent to those an SST might make as it accelerates through the sound barrier (producing 2.06 pounds of overpressure on the eardrums), cruises (1.65), and changes its flight path (2.35). A full 41 per cent of the Redlands-Fontana group and one-third of the Edwards group, which included hardened aviation veterans, found even the smallest boom, generated during cruising flight "unacceptable." At the overpressure went up, so, predictably, did the "unacceptable" ratings from the test subjects in both groups. But most disturbing of all was the fact that all subjects found even the smallest sonic boom more annoying than the howl of a subsonic jet flying over a house at 200 feet. Though further studies will be made, the tests at Edwards AFB will have little effect on the Boeing SST — which should be in service by 1975. U.S. purchasers are still proceeding on the assumption that the SST will be used for transoceanic flights only.

Big Bear to Pioneertown road aid asked

SAN BERNARDINO (CNS) — County Supervisors will hear next Monday from a Yucca Valley man of a "crash program of employment" for those "most likely to create civil disturbances."

John Haskell, project committee chairman of the "Pioneer Loop Assn., will appear before the Board to push for construction of a road from Big Bear Lake to Pinnacletown road.

Haskell is expected to present agreements and plans from the state for crossing of properties involved. He reportedly will seek to convince supervisors to back a joint state, federal and county project, enlisting Office of Economic Aid backing for funds.

Loma Linda ruling delayed

SAN BERNARDINO (CNS) — A delay of a week in deciding on an appeal against the 150-bed convalescent hospital proposed for the southeast corner of Barton road and Anderson avenue, Loma Linda, was voted Monday by the County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisor S. Wesley Break, in whose district the proposed hospital site is located, asked for the delay, saying "there are some legal points to be cleared up."

But by his sharp questioning of those against the hospital Break indicated arguments in protest had not been entirely effective.

The hospital, to be called Orangewood Convalescent Hospital, has been a subject of controversy for more than a year.

With the great interest in art, especially American paintings, more people than ever before are buying art for investment (and pleasure) at higher-ever prices. Top value art pieces, if not specifically scheduled in your present homeowners policy or insured separately, could result in a financial loss.

May we suggest another look at your paintings and a review of your insurance program to be sure of a full recovery should a severe loss occur.
